GREETINGS FROM THE STAFF

Once more, with the coming of the holidays the big B. Y. U. family breaks up home-keeping and scatters out in all directions leaving the busy old student body for a time. In keeping with the festive season the staff wishes students, faculty, and friends, a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and in addition proffers the gift of good advice. Take the B. Y. U. with you and let your native town know where you've been. Take along your copies of the "Y News" and the "White and Blue."

Let one of your gifts to the folks at home be "appreciation." Mother and father will hear about all the "big doings" at college, but will be waiting anxiously to hear you ask about the farm and mother will have surprises hidden everywhere. APPRECIATE

And just a word for a good-bye wish: don't study the holidays. It's vain to forget text books and references and "education" until next year.

"THE SEWING BEE"

"The hymn in devotional begins to rival the noise created by sewing bees," said President Harris in assembly, Monday. This is merely a statement of a condition that has become unpleasantly obvious. Certain students, wishing to advertise their lack of good manners, have selected a method that is bringing them considerable notoriety. The average small-town meetings are contemporaneous speaking contests where certain garrulous groups compete with the speaker for the attention of the whole assembly. This "small-town" heritage of crudeness seems to be crying out among people who have no desire to lose their "countryified" ear-marks. Of course, we can't remedy the fact that we've got no refinement—and ain't going to have!—has no excuse for existence in a college environment.

It is aptly suggested that those mental faculties prevent them from absorbing any part of the lecture might let their minds think for the short assembly period. To comply with this request would involve no difficulty in most cases. We have no intention to disregard the old adage, "Those who talk most have the least to say."

Cases are on record, where certain indistinct tatters have been personally requested to refrain from telling all they know

Student Body Program Liked

A very entertaining program was given by the Student Body Friday morning in assembly. There were several excellent speakers. One of these, one of the solo by Glenn Guyman, accompanied by Frank Wankam, pianist, Mr. Bean, violinist, and Victor Ashworth and Ellen Sumner, whistler. As an encore, Victor Ashworth and Sumner whistled the "Blue Bird" and "The Rose Tree." Chalk talk by Le Roy Bushman was well liked. In his talk he illustrated the foppery, a multicolored ball, and others. Both of these numbers were thoroughly enjoyed.

The rest of the program consisted of a vocal solo by Katherine Calder, Hawaiian Duet by Professor E. D. Darrington and Edmund Evans, a monologue by Elmer Peterson, and a piano solo by Gertrude Olsen. The entire program was very entertaining.

THE FIRST REQUIRE

Who shall be considered honor men of the B. Y. U.? Shall honors be awarded to those who faithfully follow the rules that he has by their study life. Any person desirous of receiving an award for service to the student body must first of all measure up to this requirement.

The first requirement of an honor man of the institution is that he be a real "Y" student. He must have B. Y. U. ideals and interests at heart, and whether he is on the campus or among strangers, he must show that he has by their study life. Any person desirous of receiving an award for service to the student body must first of all measure up to this requirement.

The new first maintains that those individuals who recently, by their actions representing the school, detracted from the character of the Brigham Young University, have no right to ask for, and less right to receive honors. An honor man must first be a real "Y" student.

NEW KIND OF EXAMS

The novel, scientific examination method that a few of our professors have been trying on their classes is gaining national popularity and possesses a number of merits. There are several different schemes, but they are all essentially alike in character. One system confines the work of the student to indicating the correctness or incorrectness of assertions; another requires him to supply facts pertinent to certain relationships; and frequently a combination of the two schemes is used.

By this method the instructor can examine the pupil's knowledge of all the material covered in the course and consequently is able to ascertain his exact standing. Under the old method where he is required to write about a few phases of the course, lack in many instances plays an important role, for lack of time prohibits him from being thorough in his answers. The new method may be exactly what one student has prepared to do while they may be the things overlooked by another equally well prepared on the subject in general. Hence injustice is frequently done in the rating. The true-or-false method economizes the teacher's time. Under the old system the instructor spends hours grading papers, which under the novel method he can do in a few minutes. Some students claim that the new system is better than the old because it is less stressful.

The true-or-false plan, however, has its defects. Frequently a teacher is endeavoring to impress upon his class certain outstanding, fundamental principles; and presumably the best way for him to ascertain the degree of success that has attended his efforts is to have the student write a brief discussion of the matter. The new system stresses information; the old stresses facts; and the amount of information that the student is able to express in a clear, cogent manner, coupled with his ability to apply it in the interpretation of conditions and the solution of problems, can best be ascertained by the old method. The test of life, in which every student will be rated when he leaves school, will not be limited to the identification of right and wrong, but it will have to do with the knowledge of the individual to express and apply and, vanquishingly in the relationships of life; and presumably the old system is better for this reason. Our problem in school is not merely to gain information, but also to learn to organize and utilize it.

The old system will probably have to give more and more room for the true-or-false method, but the latter will be only a supplement. The assertion that it will entirely supplant the old seems overdone. The best way for a teacher to ascertain the amount of crystallized information a student possesses on a particular subject is to ask him to discuss it.

CLASS DEBATE QUESTION TO BE SELECTED

At a debating council meeting Friday night, it was decided to have the debating managers choose the question and the class debating managers choose the motion. The senior manager is Paul Wankam, junior manager is Frank Wankam, Sophomore, Royden Darrington, and Freshman, Edna Jensen; the question will be decided by a vote of the assembly this week.

Great interest is being shown in Spanish literature as evidenced by the large crowd in attendance at the last meeting.

The program was devoted to Spain and consisted of a discussion on the characteristic hospitality of the people of that country.

A humorous story was very well told in Spanish by Senora Vazquez Rowley, and a sketch of Blasco Ibañez and his work was ably given by Senora Elena Bowen who handles the language in a way that would make even a native of old Spain jealous. The rest of the time was spent in learning the words and music of the beautiful Spanish love song, "La Paloma."

Symphony Orchestra Gives Concert

The Symphony Orchestra of the B. Y. U. with Professor Franklin Madsen as director gave a concert Tuesday evening in the First Ward Chapel under the auspices of the Mutual Improvement Association.

Professor Madsen and the orchestra were assisted by Alice Phillips and by Florence Newell and Louis Finch accompanists.

The audience was enthusiastic in its praise of the program as rendered. A gentleman from the Madsen apolis Symphony Orchestra said the Symphony Orchestra of the Brigham Young University was the best College Orchestra he had ever heard.

IDAHOANS HOLD PARTY

The "Motherlode" better known as the Gem State Club, held their final pre-holiday-season party last Saturday night at the Ladies' Gym. Approximately seventy-five members and friends were present in the program of games and dances which formed the evening's entertainment. Judging by the costumes and parts of the entertainment, they were just "kiddie" again for the night. A very enjoyable party was enjoyed by everyone participating.

Fry Nielson and Amy Jackson entertained the members of the Sanger Club at the home of Miss Nielson, Monday night. Games and music were featured of the evening. Refreshments were served to twenty members.

A. W. S. OFFICERS MEET

Deane A. L. Merrill entertained the officers of the Associated Women Student organization at dinner, Thursday. After discussing business meeting was conducted.

Mrs. Katherine Calkins was appointed chairman of a committee which will lead the project of re-decorating the ladies' rest room. It has been announced that some new furniture is also to grace the room.

A "Big Sister" luncheon will be held in the Art Gallery Thursday at noon at which meeting problems will be more fully discussed by all of the upper classes.

Those present at Mrs. Merrill's last Thursday were Anna Marie Eggersten, Helen Cardwell, and Kenneth Isola Jensen, Neil Clark, Katherine Calkins and Victor Johnson.

Scandal Concerning Contest Revealed

Considerable scandal has been revealed in relation to the hand contest, held last Wednesday at the meeting of the Mask.

Investigations have discovered some strange relationships between the winner and the judges.

One of the judges, Mrs. Kathryn Parlos comes from the same city as Miss Hinkley. It is rumored that for natives of the same village to favor each other.

Thursday morning, Miss Hinkley, the said winner, was seen to present Professor Owsen with some cash evidence on which any judge would convert her of bribery.

It is plain to be seen that Miss Hinkley would receive the vote of Deane Merrill. One member of the fair sex should favor another.

Professor Parlos has been known as a master blut in the institution. So far investigations have traced no affiliation between the winner and Kiefer but discoveries are progressing rapidly.

Now, what chance has a boy against a girl. Three fellows entered the contest but none received a vote from the judges.

It is suspected that further startling scandal will be disclosed in regard to the contest in the near future. The preceding information was secured from the "Disappointed Black Hand."

Competition Keen In Class Series

The inter-class hoop contests held each day at noon in the gym proving to be "hot stuff." Competition is keen and with the recent increase of football at the school, the participants show a marked indication of its lack of strength. The strength of ability are being uncovered every day and some rare games are being staged.

Arrangements have been made by the school for the entrance of a team from the high school. The prep team has as yet failed to put over a win, but they play a rather clever brand of ball.

Following is the close of the series and all the games this week promise to be rare affairs. The present standing of the teams show the Frosh No. 2, to be the only undefeated team in the run.

Smith Delivers Final Lecture

Joseph Fielding Smith of the Quorum of the Twelve, delivered the last of his series of lectures on "The Apostasy" in assembly, December 13, in the University chapel. The lecture was the Christian world through the fifth and sixteenth centuries and showed wherein the church, as it was established in its purity by Christ, had changed, and that the only right church was the one re-established at the time of the restoration.

Before the lecture to hand rendered very beautifully the selection entitled, "The Strife Church."

Juniors Planning For Vaudeville

The Junior class of the B. Y. U. are making final plans for a light and musical show, which will be given January 14th in College Hall. The general committee is composed of Neil Clark and Edmund Evans. The vaudeville will be composed almost entirely of the members of the Junior class. The light acts to be presented will be varied, though in their atmosphere and style to be a real entertainment. There will be a Hawaiian act; several monologues, a one act play; a musical act; and several readings. One feature of the evening will be a special dance act, entitled, "In a Doll's Shop." This is under the direction of Miss Neil Clark and is composed of twenty-five small "troups."
